

PEACEBUILDING

RESULTS-BASED MANAGEMENT (RBM) FOR PEACEBUILDING, SECURITY AND DEVELOPMENT

03 JULY - 07 JULY 2017 | GENEVA, SWITZERLAND

7TH INTERNATIONAL WORKSHOP

Policy-makers and practitioners in the field of peacebuilding, security and development still lack critical skills in RBM. This five-day workshop, now in its 7th edition, provides a thorough grounding in the discipline, covering programme cycle planning, theories of change, results-based approaches as well as the practical implementation of monitoring and evaluation processes using simulations and field-based case studies.

A COMPREHENSIVE SKILL-SET

As a participant, you will enhance your ability to:

- improve design, leading to better projects and programmes
- align programmes with national development priorities
- address gaps related to appropriate goal setting, performance targeting, monitoring, and evaluation of both outputs and outcomes
- improve monitoring and evaluation of projects and programmes
- encourage the development of monitoring and evaluation frameworks for national programmes
- work with a pool of national experts for evaluations
- stimulate cross-fertilisation

A UNIQUELY PRACTICAL LEARNING EXPERIENCE

The workshop consists of instruction in essential tools and techniques, current lessons from the field (case studies), guidance from experts, and hands-on practice developing an evaluation design for peace, security and development programmes. About 25% of the workshop time is spent in a small group setting.

Seminar modules include:

- project cycle management and project design
- monitoring
- theory of change
- evaluation questions and design
- data collection methods

WHO SHOULD ATTEND

This course is designed for practitioners in the fields of peacebuilding, security and development, including:

- national development, peace and security officials, representatives from local and international development, political and security agencies
- technical advisors/programme officers from UN and other relevant agencies
- key policy makers from violence-affected countries
- officials from security and development agencies from donor countries
- independent experts and specialists in the peace sector

Participants should have experience working with projects/programmes in the security and development sectors. The needs of individuals from both public and non-governmental institutions will be addressed.

ALUMNI COMMUNITY

Upon completion of the executive programme, you will become part of the expanding GCSP alumni network of over 5'100 professionals and enjoy continued access to our events. Security policy conferences enable current and past participants to meet in an informal setting to debate policy issues and share ideas and experiences.

GCSP

The Geneva Centre for Security Policy is an international foundation with 51 member states from across the globe. It provides forward-thinking and innovative solutions for leaders concerned with international affairs and security in today's complex, globalised world.

IN THE HEART OF INTERNATIONAL GENEVA

Home to over 35 international organisations, more than 250 non-governmental organisations, over 250 diplomatic missions, representations and delegations, Geneva represents one of the world's richest and most concentrated networks for international affairs.
